Hello, my name is Jolene MacFadden, and I design websites, write articles and promote local events, local businesses and writers. I am a small business person who has struggled for the last 5 years to get my websites and products noticed. I now have created over 50 websites that I have myself, keep updated, and I blog, tweet and interface on Facebook. My tastes in subject matter is eclectic but it works for me and now I have over 41,000 subscribers to my various websites.

My first website was a fan site I created for my favorite author, Dorothy Gilman. The website has changed a lot over the last 10 years but it finally reached over 106,000 hits and counting as of this month. (We didn't start counting until 4 years ago.) Sadly, Ms. Gilman published her last book in 2000 and passed away last year. But she is remembered and still loved. I will keep her website up and running for as long as she has fans. To that end I created three other fan sites for female writers who didn't have their own. They each have over 1300 subscribers and visitors in the 100s each month. That is not too shabby considering that two have passed away and another hasn't published anything in over 10 years. But I think all writers deserved to be remembered, people still read their books, still want more stories from them and we are in the process of asking their fans to send us their fan-stories. You can check them out for yourself: <http://mrspollifax.com>; <http://janiebolitho.info>; <http://barbaracomfort.info>; <http://sandrawestprowell.info>.

Enough about me. We are gathering a list of all the writers who live and work in the Northeast Florida Area. The Public Library has expressed an interest in a copy of the list and perhaps I will be able to get our local schools interested as well. And I will be sending it to all the local bookstores in the area. We are also writing a series of articles about local writers to appear on as many of my websites and I can manage. This is a chance for you to get FREE publicity, garner some interests in your work, inspire young readers and best of all possibly make some money yourself!
